world, warned Tuesday that Christians remaining in Afghanistan face “great danger” following the Taliban takeover.

Afghan Christians, almost all of whom are converts from Islam or the children of converts “are very likely to be killed” if caught by the Taliban, which applies Islamic (sharia) law literally, Barnabas declared.

“Although the Hanafi school of sharia, which predominates in Afghanistan, specifies death only for adult sane male apostates from Islam (with imprisonment for adult sane female apostates),” the UK-based fund stated, “the Taliban’s track record of an ultra-strict interpretation of sharia means it is very likely they will kill all apostates, both men and women, and probably their children too.”

Even prior to the Taliban takeover, Christians were considered traitors in the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan. The country is 99 percent Muslim, with some 90 percent Sunni and the other 9.7 percent Shia.

deaths, and some of the most brutal attacks targeted religious minorities. Antigovernment, nonstate actors, including the Taliban and a local branch of the Islamic State (ISIS-K), were blamed for the violence and jihadists claimed responsibility for many of the deadliest attacks. As a point of reference, the UN reported the Taliban were responsible for 45 percent of civilian casualties.

According to the Barnabas Fund, Christians who wish to flee Afghanistan following the Taliban uprising will face a harrowing ordeal.

“Getting to the airport means negotiating many Taliban checkpoints in Kabul, each one literally a life-or-death issue for Christians,” the Fund noted. “The process of getting to the airport involves mingling with thousands of Muslim Afghans also trying to flee the country by air.”

“The deadline of 31 August is fast approaching, and we are told that not everyone on the agreed list will be able to get evacuated in the days that remain,” it adds. “Any Christians still waiting at the airport will run the risk of being exposed as the Taliban takes control of the airport once the American troops are withdrawn.”

20 years...man, we showed them. Next time politicians want to start a war, they need to go to the frontlines with the troops.

It's an inconvenient truth that Christians are persecuted horribly in the Islamic world. 2,000 years after the death (and resurrection) of Jesus Christ, people are still being killed for their Christian beliefs.

So the USA, a Nation founded by Christians, responds by twice electing a taqiyya muslim president, then importing as many hijrah jihadis as it can from the very countries that gave us 9/11. Putting a few into the Congress of Corrupt Cowards just for additional effect.

Our rulers are not stupid; our rulers are criminally corrupt traitors.

Since the American pentagon entered the Middle East thirty years with the Bush I invasion of Iraq, the Christian population there has been decimated. Millions of Christians from Iraq, Syria, Lebanon etc have been driven out. Considering that the American Empire and its military is deeply anti Christian there is no surprise there. The American deep state is also a very anti Christian entity. Ironically most of the deep state is educated at Jesuit universities like Georgetown and Fordham. Not really surprising since the Jesuits are not really Christian but Masonic and their leader is pope Lenin . The American Empire is the face of the anti christ .

The Democrats in power, the Obama team, have a strong track record of leaving Christian populations at the mercy of islamic terrorists while welcoming criminals and military age muslim males with open arms.

More Christian persecution is going on in my lifetime than did in the first century of the church when we had so many martyrs for the faith.

I am ashamed my country is part of it.

What's there not to love about this guy. Oh, as a bonus, he crushed the ammo sales from russia (40%of ammo comes to US from russia) and let the russian pipeline open up to EU and bank russia $$$.
